

INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHICAL THINKING

SEMINAR SYLLABUS

[WINTER 2022]

DESCRIPTION

What is philosophy? Is it something we study—as subject, like biology or literature? Is it something each of us has, individually—as in, “my personal philosophy”? Is it a relic of history? An intellectual curiosity? A means to impress at cocktail parties and on social media?

Or perhaps—as this seminar will attempt to demonstrate—philosophy is a way of thinking relatively easy to identify but very difficult to practice. Mere description of the practice does not suffice for understanding it; one must, rather, engage in the practice itself. This engagement requires discipline of the mind and the consistent willingness to pursue philosophy not merely as a hobby, but as a habit. For those who have the will, this seminar will provide the means: namely through a schedule of carefully-selected readings and persistent dialogue—both in the seminar discussion sessions and through the Lyceum platform. This incipient practice of philosophy will not make you a philosopher; but it will engender in those who seize it the germ of a true philosophical habit.

METHOD

The seminar is 8 weeks long (with a break at the midway point), with one recorded lecture and one discussion session each week. Each discussion session is structured around a reading from three different Platonic dialogues (Apology, Crito, Meno) and my own Introduction to Philosophical Principles. Digital editions of all texts are provided for free. Participants are expected to have read the assigned reading and listened to the lecture prior to the session, so that they may engage in a semi-structured discussion directed and moderated by the instructor. Moreover, continual discussion will foster that participation and engagement throughout the week. Participants will be expected to partake in these discussions on a regular basis and will be challenged to do so directly.

READING

The primary texts for this seminar are three dialogues from Plato (Apology, Crito, and Meno)—which may be found in many different editions of Plato’s collected works, such as the Hackett Five Dialogues, as well as online for free—as well as an Introduction to Philosophical Principles (PDF available for free, paperback from Amazon), as well as two short PDFs that will be provided via Teams. Readings are subject to change.

LECTURE

Each week there will also be a 20-40+ minute audio lecture, posted to Teams at the beginning of the week. This lecture will be based upon the assigned reading, but will also stray into related topics, or may use the reading as a launching point for addressing some related issue (perhaps one more general, or perhaps one more specific). The primary (but not sole) purpose of these lectures is to help clarify some of the more difficult concepts and arguments contained within the reading, as well as to raise specific questions that should help structure and guide our discussion sessions.

There may be accompanying visual aids (not necessarily) in order to provide some clarity as to textual points, but one should be able, in most cases, to simply listen to the lecture (and perhaps consult the visual aids later). This should allow more flexibility: making the lectures suitable accompaniment for a commute, while doing chores, going for a run, etc.

DISCUSSION

The heart of the seminar is the discussion session (Saturdays at 1:15-2:15pm ET): where all the thoughts emergent and encountered throughout the week—via the reading, lecture, and on-going conversations in the Teams channel—are brought into explicit conversation. This allows us to attempt a concerted effort at bringing resolution to our difficulties, and—failing such a resolution—to direct our inquiry further.

Each discussion session will begin with a brief synopsis of the week’s material and a focusing on whichever aspects of that material seem most pressing. Beyond the direction provided by the instructor, participants are encouraged to bring their own concerns explicitly into view and to engage with the instructor and one another in civil debate and collective inquiry.

AUDITS OR COMPLETES

Beginning in 2022, all Lyceum Institute seminar participants will be able to either audit the seminar or complete the seminar. To complete the seminar, the participant must submit an essay of 2000+ words pertaining to the subject. This essay may be evaluated for publication in Reality and will be included in each Lyceum Institute member’s profile, along with the mark of auditing or completing.
